12:30 p.m. – 3:30 p.m. ~ NASFAA credentialing session – Cash Management

To earn this credential, you will need to know the rules and procedures a participating institution must follow to request, maintain, authorize, disburse, deliver, use, and return Title IV funds. You will need to know how to maintain Title IV funds held by the school, manage excess cash, and handle Title IV credit balances, as well as the notifications to provide and the authorizations to collect. This will help you demonstrate the ability—through effective cash management—to effectively administer the Title IV programs, and to minimize the costs and risks of the programs for students, schools, and taxpayers.

The range of topics in this test include:

- General Concepts of Cash Management
- Requesting and Managing Title IV Funds
- Disbursing Title IV Funds
- Notifications and Authorizations

Tests may include questions pertaining to a variety of program structures, such as credit- or clock-hour, term or nonterm, standard or nonstandard term, undergraduate or graduate/professional programs, and programs of various length (shorter than one year, two-year, four-year, certificate, etc.).

Complimentary access to the credential test is provided after successfully completing and passing the course.
